

PITTSBURGH BALLET THEATRE

2019-2020 ANNUAL REPORT

50th
Anniversary

OUR MISSION

To be Pittsburgh's source and ambassador for extraordinary ballet experiences that give life to the classical tradition, nurture new ideas and, above all, inspire.

OUR COMMITMENT TO DIVERSITY

Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre is committed to increasing equity, access and opportunity in the art of ballet. We believe that bringing together people with diverse perspectives, histories and life experiences will make ballet richer, stronger and more innovative — resulting in vibrant experiences for all.

Harris N. Ferris
Executive Director

Terrence S. Orr
Artistic Director

Dawn N. Fleischner
Chair, Board of Trustees

Dear Friends of PBT,

What a 50th Anniversary Season it has been! We want to express our gratitude to you for supporting us through a year unlike any other in our history.

First, we extend our deepest thanks to Terrence S. Orr, who retired in June after 23 years as artistic director. His vision, and deep love for the art form, brought tremendous growth to PBT. We will be forever grateful for his legacy to PBT and the City of Pittsburgh.

Following an extensive national search, Terrence has passed the torch to American Ballet Theatre (ABT) alumna Susan Jaffe, an accomplished choreographer and former dean of dance for North Carolina School of the Arts. We couldn't be prouder to welcome her as PBT's seventh artistic director.

In many ways, our 50th anniversary is a tale of two seasons, straddling life before and during COVID-19.

It began with a bang with three productions at the Benedum Center and events reuniting PBT alumni from across the country. In March, we were days away from opening Here + Now at the August Wilson African American Cultural Center, weeks from a 50th anniversary gala and a month from performing at the Joyce Theater in New York City. The pandemic changed all of that in an instant.

Our entire team rose to the challenge. PBT School classes went virtual for all divisions. Thousands of community members participated in online education and accessibility programs. We danced in living rooms and backyards. Our company dancers choreographed digital premieres from home. The screen became our studio and our stage.

Our 50th Anniversary Season didn't close with the finale we had planned. But, the pages ahead are a testament to what PBT has stood for over 50 years: inspiration, resilience and a family of artists, supporters and staff who prove ballet's power to resonate far beyond the theater walls.

Thank you for everything you've done to ensure our success – not only at the brightest of times, but during the times that our community needs our art form the most.

With appreciation,

Just before the curtains opened for PBT’s 50th Anniversary Season opener, Giselle, Maestro Charles Barker announced the launch of an inspiring live music appeal. Paying respect to the generosity of an anonymous donor for an incredible matching gift of $3 million, donations and notes of admiration in honor of our 48 musicians flooded PBT’s mailbox. By June of 2020, over $1 million of the $7.2 million goal to fund the next five decades of live music had been raised.

PHOTOGRAPHIC MEMORIES: A Tribute to Terrence S. Orr

Artistic Director Terrence S. Orr retired in June after leading Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre for nearly half of its 50-year history. Following his career as a principal dancer for San Francisco Ballet and American Ballet Theatre (ABT), Orr served as ABT's ballet master for 21 years and joined PBT in 1997. Here are just a few highlights from his immense artistic legacy.

1 In 2002, Orr premiered his Pittsburgh-inspired production of The Nutcracker, a lavish show attended by over 30,000 audience members each holiday season.

2 Orr enriched PBT's repertory with more than 20 commissions and dozens of PBT premieres. In addition to world-renowned works by Jerome Robbins, Jiří Kylián and William Forsythe, Orr introduced story ballets, ranging from Jean-Christophe Maillot's contemporary Romeo et Juliette to a new production of the romantic masterpiece Giselle.

3 Under Orr's leadership, increasing ticket sales and school enrollment laid the foundation for the growth of PBT's Strip District campus. PBT cut the ribbon on the Byham Center for Dance in 2016, expanding class offerings and opportunities for dancers at every level.

INTRODUCING SUSAN JAFFE

In April 2019, PBT announced the appointment of Susan Jaffe as the organization's seventh artistic director and second female director in the company's history.

What drew you to Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre and this position?

"PBT has enjoyed a very good reputation in the dance world for having a wonderful mixture of classic and contemporary work. I am so happy to follow in Terry's footsteps! In this position, the budgets are bigger and the stakes are higher, and I get to work with the dancers more than I did when I was a dean."

How would you describe your leadership philosophy?

"I strive for excellence in the quality of dance that I oversee and stage. When I was a principal dancer, I liked to work deeply and thoroughly so that the quality of my own performances were the absolute best they could be. I developed my instrument so that it could be the purest vessel for the story or choreography to flow through. This now translates in me as a coach and mentor of dancers. I love to help dancers experience how they can reach new heights in their technical, stylistic, musical and dramatic abilities."

What is your vision for the company's future?

"I aim to program an array of versatile and exciting repertory that appeals to the younger as well as mature audience members. This will happen through a variety of styles of classics and newer repertory. I also am interested in unusual locations at times of the year when the weather permits. I'd love to bring dance to people that wouldn't normally be exposed to it. I would also like to tour more often and increase the size of the company as we continue to increase our endowment."

PBT'S COMMITMENT TO IDEA

PBT created its Equity Project Transformation Team in 2017 to advance inclusion, diversity, equity and accessibility (IDEA) in the art of ballet and throughout the PBT organization. PBT's 2020-2022 IDEA strategic plan lays out concrete goals to achieve cultural change and community engagement, highlighting the following areas of growth:

Artistic representation. PBT is committed to increasing diversity on stage through both company and choreographic representation.

2019-2020 highlight: PBT added two new works by Black choreographers to its repertoire: The Quiet Dance by Kyle Abraham and SKIN + saltwater by Staycee Pearl.

Education. PBT is committed to ongoing anti-racism training for all PBT team members.

2019-2020 highlight: 100% of PBT employees, board members and PBT School students completed at least one IDEA training, and over 150 participated in six spring/summer discussions on anti-racism readings and resources.

Policy. PBT is committed to enhancing anti-racist policies in the workplace, including recruitment, hiring and retention practices and supplier diversity requirements.

2019-2020 highlight: PBT hired a manager of human resources, who will lead a Transformation Team sub-committee responsible for policy overhaul.

As PBT's artist in residence, sponsored by AE&E, Pittsburgh choreographer Staycee Pearl worked with PBT dancers to create Skin + Saltwater, a world premiere originally slated for Here + Now at the August Wilson African American Cultural Center.

Principal dancer Luca Sbrizzi took the final bow of his 12-year career with PBT following the 8 p.m. Oct. 26 performance of Giselle, a "one-of-a-kind emotional journey" Sbrizzi wanted to experience one more time before retiring.

In June, PBT premiered three digital works choreographed by nine company dancers during the social distancing of COVID-19: Hope presented by MSA, strange timez presented by Gateway Health and IN presented by Advance Auto Parts.

Dance Magazine named Corps de Ballet dancer Tommie Lin Kesten (pictured) one of its "25 to Watch" in 2020, applauding the PBT School alumna's talent for joining "joie de vivre with mature movement choices." Kesten was one of three dancers promoted to a soloist position for the 2020-2021 Season.

Six-year PBT dancer Lucius Kirst also was promoted to soloist for the 2020-2021 Season. Kirst took the spotlight this season as The Beast/The Prince in Beauty and The Beast (pictured) among other featured roles.

PBT School alumna Jessica McCann also takes on the rank of soloist for the 2020-2021 Season. In addition to choreographing for the company, McCann has shined in featured roles, including the Peasant Pas de Deux of Giselle (pictured).

1 From Beauty and the Ballet at Phipps Conservatory (pictured) to Pittsburgh Public Schools’ Summer Dreamers Academy, PBT partnered with over 60 organizations, including libraries, arts organizations and schools, to engage families across the city in dance classes and education.

2 More than 2,400 people participated in accessibility programs, including PBT’s sensory-friendly production of Beauty and The Beast (pictured), Adaptive Dance classes for youth and Dance for Parkinson’s for adults.

3 Following its annual audition (pictured), PBT awarded five new Community Youth Scholarships for the 2019-2020 school year. A total of 27 students received support from the program, which funds ongoing PBT School tuition for young talents with financial need.

4 More than 2,000 students took PBT creative movement and ballet classes at partner sites, including Hope Academy (pictured) and six Boys and Girls Clubs. Students were able to continue dancing during the pandemic thanks to Zoom classes offered with community partners.

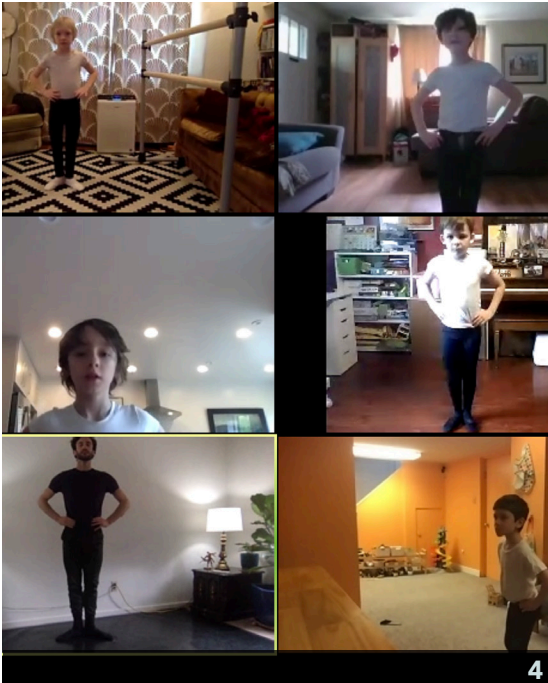

The 2019 Intensive Summer Program welcomed 207 students from 34 states and two countries for a five-week training experience that culminated in a Student Choreography Showcase and four final performances.

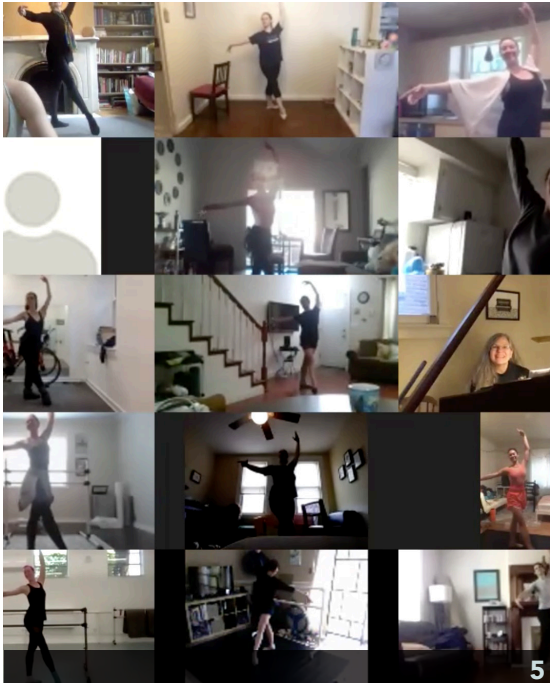

During the 2019-2020 Season, PBT School students performed 251 roles in PBT productions of The Nutcracker and Beauty and The Beast (pictured). "I soak up every bit of wisdom I can from the dancers and the experience," said Level 8 student Luke Mosher.

In addition to choreographing for the company, PBT's 2019-2020 Artist in Residence Staycee Pearl instructed a series of master classes for Pre-professional students and created a new work on a group of Graduate students.

PBT School went digital in mid-March due to COVID-19. By the end of June, faculty members had instructed 600 Zoom classes for students across all four training divisions and led a virtual Company Experience workshop for 76 pre-professionals.

In honor of PBT's 50th anniversary, Janet Popeleski, PBT School principal and former PBT principal dancer, hosted an alumni ballet class in May for 90 current and former students spanning 30 school years. Participants from 29 states and four countries danced and reminisced via Zoom.

ALUMNI REUNION

Oct. 25-27, 2019

PBT welcomed alumni dancers and faculty for a memorable reunion weekend during the first production of the 50th Anniversary Season. Highlights included a brunch hosted by PBT Costumier Janet Groom Campbell and a party at PBT's Liberty Avenue studios.

LOTI & LEON FALK JR. BUILDING DEDICATION

Friday, Nov. 15, 2019

In a transformational moment, the Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre Foundation, founded by Loti Falk in 1968, gifted PBT the Liberty Avenue studios in a dedication ceremony attended by the Falk family. The foundation's gift ensures that not only will PBT remain at home in the Strip District for years to come, but that Loti and Leon will be part of that story in perpetuity.

PBT EN POINTE (a virtual event)

Thursday, June 11, 2020

Patrons across the world gathered virtually to revisit PBT's storied half-century of history, watch world-premiere choreography and meet incoming Artistic Director Susan Jaffe. The event, chaired by Greta and Art Rooney II and Audrey and Don Heberle, and presented by the Pittsburgh Steelers and PNC, welcomed over 2,000 guests and raised over $300,000 in donations to PBT's Keep Us Dancing campaign.

A GOLDEN POINTE IN TIME

Saturday, Nov. 16, 2019
The 2019 A Golden Pointe in Time committee set a new standard of achievement for PBT’s annual gala, hosting a record-breaking crowd of 550 guests and exceeding event and scholarship appeal goals by over $100,000. Joe Klimchak emceed the night’s live auction, contributing to the record-breaking $705,090 raised by the community for children’s scholarships and artistic initiatives.
